ANALYSIS OF WAR IN EASTERN EUROPE

Battle of Russia Hasn't Much More Than Begun

NEW YORK, April 14.—(AP)—The battle of Russia, though now in its tenth month, hasn't much more than begun.

Settlement Of Tax Transfer Under Review

Domestic and provincial treasury officials Tuesday were considering the timing of the amount which the Dominion government may pay for the transfer to the Dominion of the provincial income and corporation tax fields for the duration of the war.

It was pointed out that while the transfer agreement provides for the Dominion paying the provincial government $4,000,000 a year in compensation for the tax transfer, certain collections of taxes were made by the province and they will be applied to offset against the total sum to be paid by the Dominion.

James C. Thompson, C.A., former provincial auditor and now special representative for the federal treasury, was in Edmonton Tuesday to study payments made to the province. Some collection of taxes was paid to the Alberta government and they were regarded as offsets.

The formal transfer agreement was sent to Ottawa, Hon. Solon Low, provincial treasurer, said Tuesday.

As there is an estimated $200,000 of provincial income taxes to be collected, the provincial income tax will be collected for several months to handle this work.

Lend-Lease Aid Is $400,000,000 Monthly Now

By C. T. HALLINAN
LONDON, April 14. (RUP)—The United States lend-lease program up to February provided for a total of $2,000,000,000 and is now running at the rate of $400,000,000 a month.

Chancellor Neville Chamberlain, Sir Kingsley Wood told the House of Commons today in presenting the new "Assistance Budget."

A full 12 months of lend-lease assistance has been the most striking fact in the international affairs of Britain in the last year, Wood said.

Recent returns indicate that lend-lease is now running at the rate of $400,000,000 a month and assistance to the United Kingdom alone up to March 31 is likely to reach $2,400,000,000, he continued.

Almost the scale of lend-lease deliveries from the United States is a vital factor in the war effort, he said.

The great part of American aid went to the United Kingdom up to February, he said.

Wood emphasized that in the future a larger part of lend-lease material will be transferred to Russia and the Dominions, presumably including Australia.

Work Starting On School For Coast Defence

HALIFAX, April 14.—(CP)—Defence Minister Balcan announced at a press conference Monday night that work on a huge establishment to house a coastal defence and anti-aircraft gunnery school would begin at once at nearby Dartmouth and extend to the coast.

The Dartmouth venture, he said, would be the only one of its kind in the Dominion and would be large enough to handle more than 1,000 students at times. Three soldiers would be trained for the important task of keeping guard along Canada's coast from time drawn from all parts of Canada, the men who will be trained in this new school are already being schooled here, but the new building will both intensify their activities and serve as living quarters, the minister said.

Referring to the duties of the coastal defenders, Col. Balcan said their work was "magnificent," but lamented the fact they received so little credit for their activities. "They are the forgotten men of our war effort," he said.

Gen. Wainwright reported the island fortress was under almost constant fire by Japanese artillery on both the north and south shores of Manila Bay.

Information was lacking on the fighting at Cebu, in the central Philippines, 200 miles south of Manila, where 12,000 last week landed Japanese troops. The American and Filipino defenders were so badly outnumbered, they were left with more than a few days.

On Mindanao island, 600 miles south of Manila, American troops were officially reported to have raised and burned eight Japanese food warehouses on the western shore of Davao Gulf, one of the "bleeding points" for the Japanese thrust toward Australia.

Ontario Government Extends Own Life

TORONTO, April 14.—(CP)—A bill, extending the term of the present Liberal administration for one year, was given first reading in the Ontario legislature Monday.

Introduced by Attorney General Gordon Cooper and seconded by Premier Hepburn it provoked no comment.

The government was first elected in the summer, fall and winter campaigns, which will be elements of the final decision, but they are so numerous, complex and obscure that no man, even with access to the fullest facts and figures on each side, could hope to assess them precisely.

The action continues to be day-by-day reports, from considerations of the battle line as it is known and from the topography of the immense front and the weather to come are the chief factors.

1.—Germany still is in fair position for an offensive toward the prime objective, the oil fields of the Caucasus.

2.—Russia, on the other hand, by winter counter-offensive, has driven Moscow—has served central-front salients which might have developed a wide flanking attack to counter balance the German thrust of the Caucasus.

3.—The war still is being fought in a zone largely of Hitler's own choice, although his army dispositions in that area doubtless are from what he would like—thanks again to the surprising counter-offensive power of the Red army.

Quisling Is Told Settle Norway Church Dispute

By JOHN A. PARRIS

LONDON, April 14.—(CP)—Premier Vidkun Quisling, puppet leader of the German-occupied Norway regime, has been ordered by Nazi authorities to settle the dispute with the Norwegian Protestant church, but 1,500 resigned pastors have refused to accept the "compromise" offer, the editor of the Norwegian newspaper in London reported today.

The clergy's determined stand, a Norwegian spokesman said, either would force Quisling to "retreat" or German authorities "will have to step in and use force."

He said the prospect of German intervention, however, was unlikely because the Nazis are attempting to solve the crisis without further trouble.

ARMY TAKES HENSON

"We have received a report that German authorities told Quisling that he must not further delay the settlement, and have ordered him to settle the tension immediately," the spokesman said.

Jonas Lie, the Quisling police chief, was ready on Sunday to arrest all clergy but to attempt to settle the dispute.

A committee of six, three from the Quisling police and three from the resigned clergy, met to discuss the matter.

A spokesman said the clergy, upon being asked, "Do you accept the compromise?"

"No compromise is possible. We are determined the church must have a free hand and that the decree proposed for forced labor for children must be withdrawn."

It was indicated that German military authorities told the lead in opposing Quisling and certain circles in Germany, presumably Nazi circles, who wanted to bring the church to yield.

It had been reported previously that Bishop Eivind Berglie, of Oslo, had been sent to a Nazi concentration camp and the German bishop was being confined.

A dispatch from Stockholm, however, said that a delegation of German "church experts" was en route to Oslo to attempt to bring about a settlement. Their main object was to settle the dispute with the church or several leaders who would compromise on the issue.

relations with Germany and with the other powers, including the United States. As minister of the interior, he will direct the national police and will be head of important internal matters with considerable jurisdiction over labor.

Whether the French will be turned over to the Germans is anybody's guess, although on his record Laval probably will do it if he can. It is almost certain, however, that France will now make an important contribution to Hitler's coming offensive in Russia.

That does not mean Frenchmen will be fighting in the German army. They could not be made to do it. Any more than French crews would be turned over along with the warships.

SECONDARY POSITIONS
But Hitler's great need is manpower to offset Russia's unlimited resources in that respect. To get it, he has bullied the satellite and subject nations into providing troops which he can use in second-line positions, perhaps as many as 1,000,000 men.

Moreover, he has secured industrial workers for agricultural work in Germany and has kept German war machine running and belated the filling fuel supply.

To provide men for the front, they have been made to sell on any able-bodied workers in industry and the trades. These have to be replaced.

According to reports in Switzerland, Hitler has ordered the French to provide 50,000 skilled workers to serve German industrial purposes. The help that would be given to the war against Russia is obvious.

Aside from the fleet and manpower, there are other considerations of great concern to the United States as the Allied nations. One possible use in the Western Hemisphere, and elsewhere as enemy submarine bases. The other is to aid in Libya through French North Africa.

U.S. GIVEN ASSURANCES

He had demanded first of all the reorganization of the government with Laval in power under the new cabinet, which is on the plain that the decision must be made in a week.

WORLD IMPORTANCE
Today's decree suspending the war-crisis trial said it was ordered by the "complete and exclusive information with a view to seeking and judging all responsibilities in the past."

There was every indication that the cabinet reorganization marked a crisis in French policy of importance to the entire Allied world.

The question immediately arose whether France would sever ties with Germany and turn over its formidable navy to Germany.

Charles Henri Pélissier, Pelain's chief of staff, has been put under terrific pressure for fear that the entire French government would be dissolved.

There was every indication that the cabinet reorganization marked a crisis in French policy of importance to the entire Allied world.

DRASTIC CENSORSHIP
United Press French dispatches from Paris said that the government received from United Press Correspondent in Paris a dispatch which "while official hermetic silence is still imposed here—censored—the Paris press is being censored."

Paris—censored—faced the German official news agency and the radio in Berlin, Paris broadcast and elsewhere in occupied territories.

ment in Washington, to win Vichy away from the Germans.

Although a foreign office commentator remained silent on the move, the strong belief among informed sources that Britain and United States would greet the reorganization with a strict policy toward Vichy France, had been closed.

TO FREE FREE FRENCH
Furthermore, it was said, General Charles de Gaulle's Free French movement, now only expected more help and greater recognition both here and in United States—recognition which De Gaulle plainly sought in a recent speech.

The further the commentator, however, pleaded the Vichy reorganization as forced on the French regime by the Nazis because "the Germans are to a high degree nervous about affairs in France."

The stock of Admiral Jean Darlan, vice-premier and foreign minister in the former cabinet, is known to have been falling in France and the German point of view, he was useless to foster further collaboration, the commentator added.

He said there was a corresponding upswing in pro-Ally sympathy in France, and that Vichy's inability to cope with it had annoyed the Germans to force Petain's acceptance of Laval.

MAY GET FLEET
Darlan was described, nevertheless, as being "as much in favor of collaboration with Germany as ever."

German spokesmen expressed belief his presence with Laval in the same cabinet probably would enhance the German prospects of getting the French fleet for Axis operations against Britain in the eastern Mediterranean area.

Two other causes contributing to the revision, the foreign office commentator said, were the British and Vichy's failure to handle the type of propaganda Germany wanted on the raid on the Renault plant in the Paris environs last month by the R.A.F.

"The Rom trials were intended by the Germans to demonstrate France was 'guilty' of the war, asserted. He said they failed in that respect, but they did show the sense of the regime which Vichy replaced."

Paralleled with the cabinet change, Vichy announced today a modification of the law on foreign exchange, more closely to the Nazi conception.

ARMY FEELINGS
The Germans seized upon the raid on the Renault works as a "wonderful opportunity" to announce French feeling against the Allies and for further collaboration, the commentator said, but Vichy failed to do as expected.

He said the Germans instantly thought of Laval, who though no more pro-German than Darlan, is "far cleverer" and hoped by forcing his back into Vichy's councils to secure the Nazi and Axis offensives in Russia and the Middle East, and reap richer rewards from collaboration than in the past.

RELATIONS DETERIORATE
At the time, this was taken to mean that Petain had refused demands made by Laval for his support of the government or for his return to it.

Since then relations with Germany had deteriorated steadily as German-controlled Paris newspapers denounced the Rom trial and demanded a reorganization of the cabinet which would swing France to collaboration.

It was reported that Germany was a line limit for cooperation, and that France faced disaster if it did not act in time. One editor gave Petain Marshal Hermann Goering, Nazi No. 2, as saying that the Vichy government must be the German spring attack on Russia.

BRITAIN TAKES GRAVE VIEW OF VICHY MOVE
LONDON, April 14.—(CP)—The British government today expressed grave view of the reorganization of the Vichy government, which British sources said today.

A related diplomatic source said it viewed his return as a "fatal defeat" for the United Nations, and that he had been waded through the state depart-

Complete Plan To Keep News Fair, Honest

LONDON, April 14.—(CP)—Sir Lynden Macassey, K.C., 65-year-old expert on labor and commercial law, was appointed by the Lord Chief Justice Monday as the first chairman of the Reuters Trust, obligated to maintain Britain's largest news agency on a basis of impartiality and freedom from domination by any single group.

Terms of the trust, as established last October for a minimum of 21 years, provide for a board of eight trustees, drawn from the leading figures of the London and provincial press, with an independent chairman. The trustees and a six-member board of directors were named at that time.

Appointment of Sir Lynden was the first step in the creation of the system evolved under governmental guidance after prolonged disagreement among the press, the government and the house of commons over the problem of ensuring that Reuters would not fall under control of either the government or of limited private interests.

The agency now is owned half by the Press Association, a non-profit organization, and half by the Newspaper Publishers' Association, which comprises the London papers.

The new chairman, a native of County Down, Northern Ireland, is not a newspaperman but possesses a long record of public service, expected to provide valuable background for his key position in the new structure.

Plastic Eye Is Made To Move With Real One
NEW ORLEANS, April 14.—(AP)—An artificial eye that moves in conjunction with the real one, something doctors have been seeking for years, has been developed by a New Orleans oculist who reports its successful use in dozens of cases.

The eye is made of a commercial plastic which can be fitted to the muscles to permit motion. Dr. Theodore J. Dinty, director of the Department of Ophthalmology at Louisiana State University, said he had been working on the development of the moving eye for 30 years of attention to the problem.

He has not yet made his discovery available for commercial manufacture but has employed it in his private practice and in treatment of charity patients at the L.S.U. clinics.

Unlike eyes, which are made by artifice and must be fitted by oculists just as a shoe is fitted to the foot, the plastic eye is shaped to the individual. The doctor can mould its size and shape, and even the color eye by color photography or painting.

NEW YORK, April 14.—(AP)—Alfred A. Tappan, president of the "Innocent Tappan," Dr. Hewitt Johnson, Dean of Canterbury, said Monday night in a trans-Atlantic short-wave message to a Victory rally honoring the Soviet Army.

In his first address to the American people, Dr. Johnson, speaking from London, said:

"To launch a western offensive now, this year, this summer, this spring, will seal the fate of Hitler in 1943, or 1944, but in 1942 the fall of Japan would follow Hitler's fall as night follows day. Attack is our plain duty. We must not shrink from it. We dare not shrink it. The people clamor for it."

Canada's Army Very Studious Report Shows

MONTREAL, April 14.—(CP)—Fifty sets of correspondence courses in military subjects were sent to British prisoners of war in Germany during the past year by the Canadian Red Cross Educational Services. It was disclosed in the organization's annual report today.

The report added that since it is known now where the prisoners are, containing Canadian prisoners of war, other sets are being sent.

The report showed that Canadian soldiers, sailors and airmen spending a total of 419,716 study hours during the past year in a single branch of the organization's work—that is, in classes under the auspices of regional committees in which correspondence course leaf-books were used.

Among other activities during the year was the provision of special educational facilities for the Royal Canadian Air Force. By arrangement with the director of air force training, refresher and completion courses have been conducted in the evening in several centres for aircrew applicants who were rusty or below standard in English, mathematics and science.

The report was compiled under the direction of and presented by Sgt. Lfr. Andrew Moore, R.C.A.F., director and deputy chairman of the Canadian Legion educational services. It was issued to 2,500 students enrolled in regional classes in Canada.

City Speeds Air Raid Precautions

Patterson Urges Strong Demand Be Pressed On Dominion For Money Aid

An appropriation not exceeding $1,500 was made available by city council Monday night to the Edmonton Air Raid Precautions committee for preliminary expenses in the setting up of air raid precautions plans in the city.

I Saw Today

The money will be used to purchase armchairs for air wardens, the printing of a pamphlet of instructions to residents and other incidentals to the air raid precautions work.

Mayor John W. Fry intimated that the air raid precautions work is the Dominion government's responsibility for that work would be one of the main questions discussed at the forthcoming convention of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities to be held at Ottawa.

Ald. Guy Peterson, K.C., said it came up to us to impress on the senior government that they had a duty to municipalities and the people to see that proper air raid precautions were furnished in vulnerable areas. It was ridiculous to think that cities could be expected to bear the whole cost of setting up and maintaining air raid precautions work," he said.

This is a major work, and many thought it absolutely necessary that Edmonton should be represented at the convention. Ald. Peterson said that the preliminary steps for air raid precautions have been taken.

Mayor John W. Fry, arguing that the appropriation be granted, referred to the excellent work achieved by the committee. He said city firemen were training a corps of volunteer fire fighters, while the Veterans Volunteer Reserve members were undertaking air raid work.

Post-War Era Demands Care In Planning

Building the new post-war order on solid principles ought to be the concern of those planning reconstruction, according to David C. Lamb, Salvation Army planner, stated when he addressed members of the Edmonton branch of the Canadian Club, at the Macdonald hotel on Tuesday night.

Commissioner Lamb, a guest from Aberdeen, Scotland, is touring Canada on a special mission at the request of the British government and the Salvation Army in preparation for post-war reconstruction.

Topic of his address was "Air Raid Experiences and Problems of Post-War Reconstruction."

He referred to Christ's illustration of the two houses, one built on sand and the other founded on rock—to point out the danger of reconstructing civilization upon unfounded principles.

Every decent, honest, healthy man should be regarded as a distinct asset and not a liability. In a well-ordered state every man produces more than he consumes and the commonwealth is thereby enriched, the commissioner stated.

The approach to the economic class in the Atlantic Charter must be a spiritual one based on the following Christian ethic, "How much can I put into this rather than how much can I get out of it," he remarked.

The solution to all our problems, he felt, is in the family, national and international lies in the practical application of the Christian ethic, "therefore all things whatsoever ye would that men do unto you, do even so to them," he said.

Ronald Martland, club president, was in the chair.

Official photographer for the American Wild Life Institute and author in Edmonton in 1927 and 1928, Miss Lorene Squire, 32, of Harper, Kansas, was injured fatally on Sunday in a motor car accident at Pawhuska, Oklahoma.

Miss Squire passed through in a few years ago, en route to Chicago and Alaska, where she "shot" wild swan and ducks. In 1928, her pictures of wild life taken in the North West Territories were exhibited in New York and Baltimore. Several of her illustrated articles were published in the "Aberdeen," the publication of the Hudson's Bay Company, and almost every outdoor magazine featured her work in the northland, many of them running a series of pictures over several issues.

Speaks Here

Mr. Kenneth Thompson, an instructor with the R.C.A.F., is spending a 10-day leave from service in Eastern Canada while Sgt. Thompson, R.C.M.P., arrived Sunday on furlough after serving overseas for a year and a half.

Kenneth has been home a week, and will be leaving for Ottawa Wednesday night. Mrs. Thompson will accompany him.

After spending a 14-day furlough at home, Mr. Thompson will return to his post in the R.C.M.P. He has not yet been notified of his station. He joined active service shortly after the outbreak of the war. The twin brothers, age 23, are spending their furlough with the widowed mother and their wives at 8648 101 street, Wilfred will be here for at least 10 days longer.

Outlines Problems Post-War Period

Speaking of his experience of war-time in England, Mr. Thompson outlined the problems of the post-war period, and the need for reconstruction.

L. W. Brockington Arrives In City

Leonard W. Brockington, K.C., Ottawa, one of North America's outstanding orators, arrived in Edmonton Tuesday morning in the course of a lecture tour of Canada.

Mr. Brockington will speak at the McLaughlin church at 8:30 p.m. His subject will be "Canada and Britain: He will speak also on the forthcoming plebiscite."

Cycle Licenses In Great Demand

Edmonton is turning to bicycles as a mode of transport, and evidence of this is contained in the report of the city license department.

On Monday the writer received the following by letter from his former Mayor, W. G. Morrison, K.C., of Vermilion:

"I wish you would mention how much the people who went through the cars appreciated the courtesy and attention shown them by L. C. C. & M. C. M. C. officers and his men. There was none of the usual military brusqueness; they made the people feel free and easy and they made the town a delightful and enjoyable."

And Mayor Morrison is quite correct. There was the warmest and friendliest in speech and manner on the part of every member of the train personnel.

Perhaps the boys on the train were cheerful because of some of the entertainments shown by the company. When told that the giant 60-inch searchlight threw a beam of 600,000 candle power, a woman marvelled in these words:

"But how can they get all these candles inside when they light it up?"

Another lady studied a Lewis machine gun pointing skyward and exclaimed:

"Look at that big telescope! That's what they spot the enemy airplanes with!"

And this one was very nearly too much:

"That's a funny thing to me, mister! The lady was referring to the cylindrical object bearing the stars 'Four inch searchlight'! But all of the dumb questions were asked by women, the men asked by R. G. Watson, plant superintendent, revealed."

Family Reunion As Twin Sons Home On Leave

These are happy days for Mrs. A. E. Thompson, 2648 101 street, as she is enjoying the company of her twin sons, whose leaves from active service happened to coincide.

Cpl. Kenneth Thompson, an instructor with the R.C.A.F., is spending a 10-day leave from service in Eastern Canada while Sgt. Thompson, R.C.M.P., arrived Sunday on furlough after serving overseas for a year and a half.

Boys From Farms And Cities Sail Canadian Navy Ships

Dirty weather at sea is nothing to get excited about, say the men who sail the ships of the Royal Canadian Navy. It can happen every day—and often does. Through the raging tempests of the winter Atlantic the boys from Canada's farms and cities are fighting in the finest British tradition to defend their homes.

Laying a smoke screen is one item of strategy in sea warfare that everyone understands, more or less. The seagoing defenders of Canada could tell you how and why and when it is done, and they probably will if you ask them . . . after the war is won when they have more time to spare.

This is a destroyer of the Royal Canadian Navy. Manned by a proud ships company this is one of the ships which have braved torpedoes and surface raiders and the angry waves of the North Atlantic to maintain Britain's life line.

Wherever a group of wen are living together, in barracks, dormitories or aboard ship, there is at least one gay young buck who is addicted to practical jokes. Take a look at the good-natured group of lads in this photograph taken on the deck of a Royal Canadian Navy ship; any one of them might be the prankster.

Canada's sailors are prolific letter writers, as the ship's officers who censor them know well. At almost any hour of the day or night, when there's no fighting to be done, someone is devoting his leisure time to telling the folks at home how well he feels. The officers take their turn at censorship.

Giant Plane Plant Spells No Good For Axis

These pictures give you some idea of the size of Henry Ford's new bomber plant near Detroit. The factory is more than a half mile long, a quarter mile wide. Shown are the interior and exterior of the assembly line section, which extends three thousand feet beyond the administration and manufacturing section. Autos will run errands in this part.

A Life Is Saved

While a life net is stretched against the building, a policeman is lowered from the roof of an apartment house in New York to foil reported plans of Mrs. Anastasia Taylor to leap out the bathroom window, arrow, of her 10th-floor apartment. When the policeman blocked the window, other officers forced their way into the apartment. The woman was taken to a hospital.

CHAPTER XXVIII

When Judy recovered consciousness the first streaks of daylight were streaming up the eastern horizon. She could see the skyline from where she lay on the floor in front of the back seat of a rapidly moving car. She groaned, attempting to sit up and found that she was not only tied to a hands and feet but tied to the car as well.

GAD

At sounds of her groans someone in the front seat muttered, "Shut up or I'll put the gag in your mouth again. I thought you were choking. That's the only reason I took it out before."

Judy tried to speak, her mouth was dry, her tongue swollen.

"Let me sit up," she pleaded. "My head is spinning. Please let me sit up."

With an angry oath Krug stopped the car, got out of the front seat, untied the ropes that tied her to the luggage strap.

"That was just in case you tried to throw yourself out of the car during the night. It was Berthe's idea."

"Where is Berthe?" Not that Judy really wanted to know, but it was something to say and the words leaped to her parched mouth involuntarily.

"Never mind about where Berthe is, the question is where are you and how are you?"

"I'm all right," Judy managed. "But I don't know where I am."

LOOK AROUND

"One part of the desert looks about the same to you as any other part," said Krug. "You said, and his manner was almost gallant. 'Well, if you intend to behave yourself I haven't any objection to letting you sit up and look around.'"

He reached into the back seat, took Judy rustily by the shoulder and pulled her out by his side. "Here, get in the front," he said. "I can see that nothing happens to a lot better if you stay here in front."

He started the car again. Judy could see now that they were not leaving the desert.

Evidently Krug had just made that remark for the sheer mania of making it for they were not surrounded by desert. Rather, they were following a very narrow mountain trail and the route was becoming almost impassable.

Once or twice Krug stopped his laboring car to look ahead. It was light enough now so that Judy could see what he was looking for. Krug was looking for tracks in the sand and of him, and at last he found them, unmistakably.

FRESH TRACKS

Some car had passed this same way only a few minutes before. The tracks were still fresh. Each time Krug assured himself that a car had preceded him as his fear of a salafation on his feet as though he was relieved he had not lost the way.

Judy interpreted that as meaning he had never been over this ground before. She wondered how much longer this trail would lead ahead and how soon it would grow absolutely impossible to follow.

Krug's car was heavy, she was almost certain this was a car that belonged at the ranch.

"Why don't you tell me where you're going?" she managed, trying to keep her voice as calm and unstrained as it could be with her dry mouth and swollen tongue and her heart beating like a trip hammer.

BERTHE KNOWS

"It's a place Berthe knows," Krug grumbled. "She said it was a place where no one but Indians ever came, and I certainly believe her."

There were some Indians on the trail ahead that minute.

Judy saw them, a squaw and a young child. They were evidently picking berries of some kind and Krug's car in the midst of surprise.

Then the young squaw, collecting her wits, pointed ahead up the trail excitedly. The gesture told the two in the car as plainly as though the young squaw had spoken perfect English, that a car had only a few minutes ago passed that way.

Krug nodded to himself in grim satisfaction.

"You think Berthe has been this way before, probably is just ahead of us?" Judy asked.

Krug did not answer. He was needing to pay attention to the driver.

MORE DIFFICULT

Presently the trail got even more difficult. They had rounded the bend from where the young squaw picked berries and even the tracks of the car that had preceded them were now lost as a shifting wind played quick havoc with the sand.

"What now?" Krug said with an oath and then caught his breath at sight of Sukos in the trail ahead. Sukos was beckoning. "Can get through," he was saying. "Miss Dirkey say, 'Give it the gas.' Can get through."

Obeying by calling on all the power he had, the great car leaped ahead at Krug's touch. Sukos nodded with satisfaction.

It was only a few hundred feet away then that they came upon a clearing. There was a car at the clearing—two cars, in fact. They decided, craning her neck to see the Berthe stood at the side of one of them.

"Take them around in back, Sukos," she said. "You'll see what I do when you get there. It's a natural."

FORSAKEN PLACE

"What's a natural?" Krug demanded, climbing out of the car and stretching his legs. "You said this was a forsaken place. You're absolutely right."

"It's a natural," Berthe repeated. "You can hide away and never be found."

Who wants to be hidden away like that? Krug said, looking about with moody eyes.

Berthe was not pleased at his lack of enthusiasm. "I suppose you'd rather stay around Alcatraz than here?" she snapped.

Well, shut up about that. It's an old post in a storm, and this isn't such an old post.

He went inside. The hut was part adobe, part log, hewn from the mountain pines, but it was entirely adobe. As Judy looked were probably three rooms to the kitchen, a bedroom and a large living room.

CRUDE FURNISHINGS

The living room was furnished after a way and in a very crude fashion. There were four bunk beds at the side, two above the other two. They had battered, sagging mattresses on them and old blankets were tucked over them.

The rest of the furnishings of the living room were scant—a rug or two made out of animal skins, a huge table with legs of hewn wood, a stove, a sheet iron stove, a cupboard and a bookcase with some old books and magazines that appeared dog-eared and weather beaten.

"Aloofa looks like a parson to this," Krug worried. "Maybe you think this is worth while, but I don't. If I had to take my choice of staying in this place for a month or being hanged, I'd be hanged."

"Shut up," Berthe said. "You wouldn't say such thing. And we aren't taking any chances. You follow my lead and we'll be out of here inside of a week."

INSIDE OF A WEEK

"If we're out of here inside of a week I'm willing to follow any lead you make," Krug said, sitting down in the one chair the room afforded. "You get out to the kitchen."

Berthe said to Judy. And then, looking up at Sukos who came into the room, she said: "I'll tell you what I mean," she said eagerly, turning to Krug as Sukos looked Judy out of the room.

What To Do

May I use glass bread and butter plates with my fine china? I have been unable to match the china and wouldn't care to use another pattern.

Answer:—It would be quite correct to use glass for your bread and butter plates.

You could have either crystal clear glass or you could get in a color that would harmonize with the design in your china. If you wish, you could introduce a little variety by having two different sets of bread and butter plates, one in crystal and one in colored glass. It is quite possible that you could purchase perfectly plain ivory china plates in a fine grade to blend with your table setting.
